

DIARIES AT THE READY

SPICE UP YOUR LIFE

London #SpiceUpLondon, Business Design Centre, Upper Street, N1; 28 July-20 August; £10; spicegirls-exhibition.com

A chance to reminisce about all the Buffalo trainers, Union Jack dresses and leopard print leotards the Spice Girls threw our way in the Nineties is upon us. New exhibition #SpiceUpLondon is set to fill London's Business Design Centre with hundreds of nostalgia-inducing stage costumes, many of which haven't been seen in public since they were first worn by the girl group. On top of that, there will be plenty of events, from dance classes to tours and a chance to see inside the fabulous tour bus in which their 1997 blockbuster Spice World was filmed. So round up the troops and clear your diary, tickets for this time-portal are on sale now.

Praise the power of a book club

Nationwide The Guernsey Literary And Potato Peel Pie Society, in cinemas 20 April

Lily James plays Juliet Ashton, a celebrated but uninspired writer desperately in search of a good story. Set in the aftermath of World War Two, Ashton hears of the Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society, a quaint book club set up in German-occupied Guernsey. She arrives on the island eager to meet its members, only to discover their story is much more complex than she had imagined. Her fight to tell it will leave you with a reignited belief in the power of storytelling.

Join the Espresso Martini Society

London The Espresso Martini Society; Moor St, Soho, W1D; 20 April-27 May; £10; thebonsinexperiment.com

According to legend, the espresso martini was first invented in Soho in the Eighties when a model stormed up to bartender Dick Bradsell and requested a drink that would "wake me up and f*ck me up". It's no surprise, then, that Soho is the chosen location for a pop-up speakeasy serving no fewer than 20 variations of the cocktail. Prepare to work your way through unique medleys of vodka, liqueur and coffee during the six-week stint. Decaf is, thankfully, an option.

Get some screen time

London Screen Printing Workshop; Print Club, Millers Avenue, E8; various dates; £65; printclublondon.com

If you've ever wanted to try your hand at screen printing, this is your chance to learn from the best. Print Club London has collaborated with everyone from Nike to Stella McCartney, and this month is offering in-studio sessions for total beginners. With experienced technicians on-hand you'll be guided through the entire process, from exploring the studio for inspiration and digital image editing, to pulling the squeegee.

Step into the sound of chatter

Liverpool Euphonia By Emma Smith; Bluecoat, School Lane, L1; 27 April-24 June; free; thebluecoat.org.uk

Artist Emma Smith puts the sound of chatter under the microscope in her latest exhibition at Liverpool's Bluecoat gallery. Collaborating with a team of experts on psychology, music and the brain, Smith has created a sound chamber based on the idea that when we engage in friendly interactions – small talk, gossip, laughter – we unconsciously make music through the interlocking rhythms, pitch and tone. Get ready to be enveloped in melodies and leave with a deeper appreciation of the music of human relationships.
